

Associate Professor of Surgery
Vice Chair of Education,
Director of Medical Student Education and
Surgical Education Research
MGH Department of Surgery

2011. Dr. Phitayakorn is an Associate Professor of Surgery in the Department of Surgery at Harvard Medical School (pre-clinical and clinical). He is also the Director of the HMS 8th Annual Gale L. Mendeloff, MD, Memorial Lectureship.

Dr. Phitayakorn completed his medical education at the University of Michigan Medical School (pre-clinical and clinical), followed by a surgical residency program at the University of Michigan Medical School. He is also the Co-Director of the American College of Surgeons Simulation Fellowship program and Chair of the HMS Department of Surgery Simulation Fellowship program.

Dr. Phitayakorn has a Master's degree in Medical Education (MHPE). Dr. Phitayakorn was an external examination member for the American College of Surgeons Simulation Fellowship program and develops medical education content for the American College of Surgeons Simulation Fellowship program.

Dr. Phitayakorn is also the Co-Director of the American College of Surgeons Simulation Fellowship program, the ACS Surgical Education Principles and Standards of Practice, the ACS Surgical Education Leadership, and the Harvard Medical School Department of Surgery Simulation Fellowship program.

